

FOR IMMIGRATION.

Leon County Needs People and Should Advertise For Them.

The announcement that the "County Fathers" have authorized the publication of a "descriptive pamphlet of Leon county" is a step in the right direction and will doubtless be of great advantage to many Tallahasseeans, who know little of the character or resources of Leon county. The vast area embraced within the boundary of Leon county, extending, as it does, from the South boundary of the State of Georgia to the North boundary of Wakulla county, and bounded on the east by Jefferson county, and on the west by Gadsden and Liberty counties, contains seven hundred and thirty square miles of land surface, or 467,200 acres. The surface rises gradually from the southern to the northern boundary, reaching, in some places, a height of more than 300 feet above the sea level. These lands, in many places, consist of rich, sandy loam, with red clay subsoil. Only about 130,000 acres included in farms poorly cultivated, leaving over 300,000 acres available for cultivation; perhaps 100,000 of this is cleared or improved land. The numerous streams and lakes throughout the county afford abundant water for stock, manufactures and other purposes, and these streams and fresh water lakes abound in choice food fishes, that are a joy to the sportsman and a delight to the epicure. An analysis by the State chemist shows that the average soil of Leon county contains the three prime elements of plant food in the following proportions: One measure of phosphoric acid, and three measures of nitre to each one thousand measures of soil. Soda and magnesia and lime are present in slightly less proportions, with carbonic acid, at a rate of one and three-fourth parts in a thousand. To these excellent chemical conditions must be added equability of temperature the prolonged period for growth with regularity and abundance of rainfall.

There are a number of popular health resorts within the county; and throngs of fugitives from the rigors of Northern winters, and from devastating diseases, unknown to Leon county, seek this genial climate and crowd our spacious hotels and boarding places throughout the Winter season. The number of these is annually increasing, and many good and useful citizens, now contributing to the moral and material prosperity of Leon county are here because of the favorable reports of those from other States who come to "spy out the land." The vexatious labor question, so long perplexing our section, will be solved when the thrifty and intelligent small farmers of the central and more northern States find out the situation and possibilities of Leon county.

The action of Hon. B. E. McClintock, Commissioner of Agriculture, in compiling a descriptive pamphlet of the resources and natural advantages of the State of Florida, is commendable, but the interests of each county, and Leon county in particular, demand that special effort be made, in order to inform our neighbors, who are seeking more desirable climate and conditions of industrial life, of the advantages to be found within our borders.

If the progressive business men of Tallahassee and Leon county would organize a commercial club and address themselves to the proper and liberal exhibition and advertisement of Leon county and its natural resources, scatter the information throughout the Central and Northern States, the tide of immigration would soon turn, at least in some measure, to this part of the country. The season for State and county fairs throughout the country is now at hand. Why not organize, and provide an exhibit of the products of Leon county—a display of timber, minerals, grasses, fruits, nuts, vegetables, flowers, stone, clays, and other products; prepare attractive, photographic pictures of our public buildings, factories and a few of the many elegant and attractive private residences of the city and county?

Why do not our owners of large landed interests combine and offer inducements to intelligent, thrifty farmers to come and lease or buy their lands? In one county in Kentucky bordering on the Ohio River more than one hundred families of thrifty, intelligent citizens, have pulled up stakes and gone West within the past year and a half. Many of these desirable people would have settled in Leon county, had they been informed of the numerous advantages of this country over the desert lands of the West, with that fickle climate and uncertainty of water supply.

The greatest wealth of any country is in its people; and, while we can boast of our excellent citizenship, there is yet room for others, and we need no other contribution to our future advancement and prosperity as we need the coming of hundreds of intelligent, industrious and upright people.

Comments of State Newspapers On The True Democrat.

For personal reasons we have refrained from noting the many reproductions in the columns of our contemporaries of articles from The True Democrat; not that we do not feel highly complimented by such evidences of appreciation, but that we believe our readers are entitled to a better use of our space.

We feel, however, especially gratified at the comments of our brethren concerning the attitude of The True Democrat with reference to the contest we have undertaken against the spirit of graft and misgovernment which characterized the Jennings administration, and we gladly reproduce a few of them, to show our subscribers that we have aroused the attention of some, at least, of our contemporaries. The topic is one that promises to afford plenty of "copy" for every newspaper in the State until the entire public is aroused to a determination that never again shall there be cause for accusation against a Democratic office holder in Florida.

The Apalachicola Times says: "Editor John Collins has the ex-Governor's scalp hanging at his belt."

The Jacksonville Metropolis says: "An exchange last week remarked that the Croom gubernatorial boom did 'a-borning.'—Tallahassee True Democrat. Did it ever have a 'borning'?"

The Plant City Courier says: "The Tallahassee True Democrat may not be right in all its editorial utterances, but we cannot but admire its fearlessness. Its columns certainly furnish interesting reading matter."

We certainly regret the fact that the Courier should appear to have no opinion of its own on the subjects of which we treat.

The Ocala Banner copies a paragraph referring to the "padding" of the Comptroller's reports during the Jennings administration to make "copy" for the State printer, and remarks that "Unless the Comptroller is a more industrious man than the most of us, he would not take upon himself all this work just for a little rake off in the printing. He can no doubt find in his office easier roads to graft than the one here pointed out."

Doubtless; but we are not hunting up for him "easier roads to graft." We are simply pointing to the graft which appears in the official records.

The Lake City Index says: "The True Democrat wants to be understood as not charging Hon. Arthur Williams with dishonesty. We thought it might be misunderstood, and are glad to see our friend 'hedge.'"

It was not "hedging"—it was just the plain truth. Brother Appleyard did not recognize it.

Jeff. L. Davis, in assuming editorial control of the Inverness Chronicle last week, said: "We believe there is, and has been, graft and rottenness in our State government, and it is our aim to 'howl loud and long' against those who commit the crime and those who wink at it."

Whereupon the Lake City Index promises that "one hundred good Democratic papers in Florida" stand ready to help. If they don't do more than the Index has done thus far, they won't help much.

Editor Frank Walpole, of the Manatee Record, after suffering from nearly all the ills that flesh is heir to, blooms out in this issue as follows:

"Just keep your peepers on the million dollar bank in Jacksonville and the five thousand dollar a year governor. But in doing this we wouldn't have you mention for the world anything about the Walter Coachman convict lease, or how a man who was 'broke' as a country editor when he went into office, can serve four years as governor on a salary of $3,500 a year, when it takes $4,000 for a governor to live, and come out of that office at the end of his term financially able to take $25,000 worth of stock in a million dollar bank. No, not for the world we have you mention this. It might cause hard feelings, and also bring back to memory the public utterances on the streets of Tallahassee of the late Capt. William Bazzell, of Pensacola, to the effect that 'every appointment west of the Suwannee had been bought and paid for.' These things are of the past, but there is a strong connecting link with things of the present day, and if the Record can only get a little more evidence it will certainly pull the 'cover' off of a few individuals and show them up in all their deformities to the public."

Watch the columns of The True Democrat, Brother Walpole, and you'll get on the track of enough "evidence" to satisfy a jury.
